By royal decree, published in the Bulgarian Official Gazette of March 21, 1934, the new veterinary convention between Bulgaria and Turkey has been promulgated. The agreement was reached after negotiations extending over some months, and the completed text was signed at Ankara on December 22, 1933. Ratification by the Bulgarian parliament was voted on February 22, 1934. Ratifications have not yet been exchanged, pending final action by Turkey. The convention is to become effective one month after the exchange of ratifications.

Provision is made for a validity of two years, after which the agreement will remain in force indefinitely unless one of the parties formally denounces it, such denunciation to become effective only after an interval of six months.

The convention contains no unusual features. Since the text includes the models of the prescribed certificates of origin, certificates of health, food products certificates, registration forms for animals, notice forms for contagious animal diseases, et cetera, the complete text, in Bulgarian and French, is enclosed herewith, on pages 4162 to 4172 of No. 285 of the Official Gazette of March 21, 1934.

Articles 1 to 17 include the regulations governing commerce in live stock and products of animal origin, prescribing the points of entry, the health requirements, the veterinary procedure, the regulations concerning meat, dairy products, hides and skins, canned goods, animal fats, et cetera (Articles 11 - 13), and disinfection of railway cars and ship holds.

Articles 18 to 26 define the "veterinary frontier zone"

and prescribe the regulations for movements of animals within or across that zone. Articles 27 to 34 establish the measures for preventing and combating contagious or infectious disease in the frontier zone.

The concluding articles of the text proper merely provide for the settlement of disputes, exchange of ratifications, et cetera. These are followed by seven models of certificates and various forms prescribed in the body of the convention.
